THE EFFECT OF VITAMIN C ON THE URINARY EXCRETION OF URIC ACID

By J. H. HARRIS, M.D., and J. H. HARRIS, JR., M.D.
 From the Department of Medicine, University of California, San Francisco, California

Received for publication June 10, 1954

It has been suggested that the administration of vitamin C may be beneficial in the treatment of gout. This paper reports on a study of the effect of vitamin C on the urinary excretion of uric acid.

Methods
 Results

Discussion

Conclusion: The administration of vitamin C does not appear to have a significant effect on the urinary excretion of uric acid.

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of vitamin C on the urinary excretion of uric acid. The study was conducted in a double-blind, randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 20 healthy men who were given either 100 mg of vitamin C or a placebo daily for 14 days. The results showed that there was no significant difference in the urinary excretion of uric acid between the two groups.
